Western General Electric Co., Ltd.
MOTOR SERVICE.

The time is now come when this Company is prepared to furnish power for all purposes, great and small, by means of Electric Motors. These Motors are so low in cost; occupy so little space; are so easily controlled, and are so exceedingly economical in operation that their use will be practically universal as soon as people understand the matter. There is scarcely a home, or a place of business, in which electric power cannot be used to lighten and cheapen labor. Inquiries solicited.

W. A. MOORE, Managing Director.

Getting Ready for the Federal.

Mr. John T. Moore M. P. P. addresses his friends, supporters and electors generally through the columns of the Advocate and refers them to the work done in this constituency since he was elected. Our member is never shy or backward when it comes to taking the pedestal. He refers to the large amount of road work done and intimates that it was through his efforts these grants were secured, when it is well known that a sum was set aside for road work and divided between the constituencies and we would have secured our share even though we had an opposition member or no member at all.

He next takes credit for building the bridge at Content, and of securing the grants for the Penhold and Red Deer bridges.

The Content bridge was settled in the old North West Assembly and our member can hardly take credit for that. The Penhold bridge has been J. A. Simpson's pet scheme for years, and to him belongs the honor of getting it. Had the member for Innisfail not promised that bridge he could never have been elected. By a look at the map it will be seen that it does not effect Red Deer constituency in the least as Mr. Simpson's constituency follows the river north of the bridge for at least six miles on the other side of the river.

With regard to Red Deer bridge our member is no doubt entitled to the credit of using his best efforts to get it, but he absolutely could do nothing less. Mr. Moore desired to have the bridge straightened so as to be on Gaetz avenue and to have the said road on the other side of the bridge opened up in front of the Moore property up over the hill.

After a visit of the Minister of Public Works to the town a short time ago a petition was circulated asking the government to do this work, which would lead one to imagine that our member does not have the influence with the public works department he would like to infer in his letter he has.

The whole article sounds hollow, egotistical, effusive and will not be taken seriously by the majority of the people of Red Deer. As a citizen remarked the other day on reading the letter "I have been to every public meeting such as the Board of Trade, temperance and other meetings for th past six months, and I have only seen Mr. Moore at one meeting, then he had been asked to make an address. When he is not busy with his own affairs or attending the legislature he is enjoying a "well earned rest" in Ontario.

That Hose Reel Race.

The Innisfail Province says of the hose reel race at Calgary:

"It was discovered, however, that Red Deer had run twelve men on the team instead of the correct number, eleven. They had also started to unroll the hose before coming to the 35 foot mark provided for that purpose, and on these grounds a protest was entered against them, which was allowed by the committee, Innisfail thereby winning the championship, which it was admitted they had fairly won, as the advantage obtained by Red Deer by the foul was such that it would not have been possible for them to finish inside of Innisfail's time, if conditions had been the same."

Red Deer did not run twelve men on their team. They ran eleven. Chief Meeres ran beside them for only a short distance and this was claimed to be coaching, and against the rules although it did not alter the race in the slightest degree, which was proved in the second race when they made exactly the same time. With regard to unrolling the hose too soon, Innisfail first protested on this point and the committee threw out their protest, as there were witnesses present who were willing to take their oath before the committee that Red Deer did not start to unroll their hose before coming to the 35 foot mark. It was after this protest was thrown out, that Innisfail were informed if they protested against Chief Meeres running with his men they would succeed in ruling out Red Deer. They did so, and got the cup.

Councillor Botterill and members of the Red Deer Brigade were informed at the same time if they protested against Innisfail starting more than once they would succeed in ruling them out. Be it said to their everlasting credit that they refused to do so claiming if they could not win by fair means they would not resort to such tricks to win.

Supreme Court.

The sittings of the Supreme Court closed on Monday evening. There were six criminal cases on the Docket, of these two were by the authority of the Attorney Generals Department withdrawn, viz:—The King vs. Larkin and the King vs. Stewart, in the case of King vs. Johnson a charge of uttering counterfeit coin and two other charges of a similar nature the prisoner was acquitted. The accused was also acquitted in the case of King vs. Schuler. At the close of the case for the Crown the Judge acquitted the prisoner at once, and stated that a Grand Jury in this country would be useful in such cases. In the case of King vs. Tolman the accused was charged with a serious offence but after a prolonged trial by the Judge and Jury was acquitted. In the King vs. Pocha, the accused was a half breed charged with horse stealing. A bill of sale was produced, but the Court after hearing the expert testimony and upon examining and making a comparison of the hand writing found that the bill of sale was a forgery, and convicted the accused and sentenced him to eighteen months imprisonment in the Calgary guard room. A case of local interest was the trial of Dr. Grant, F. R. Pennefather, James A. Steele, Gilbert McKenzie and James Fitz Patrick charged with stealing certain boats and pevies the property of the Great West Lumber Company. This case was tried with a jury and the accused put in no evidence on their behalf, and after hearing the evidence for the Crown the Jury acquitted them all.

Only two civil cases out of twenty eight that were set down on the list were tried. The case of Bremner vs. Purdy which was an action to recover certain moneys which the plaintiff claimed she was entitled to out of the proceeds of a sale of a piano. The plaintiff bought from the defendant a piano and gave lien notes to the defendant for the price of the same, she failed to make the payment and the defendant retook and resold the piano, and the Plaintiff claims that part of the proceeds should be returned to her and that the defendant has charged her too much for the expense of retaking and reselling the piano. The Defendant on the other hand claims that he has only charged the Plaintiff one half of what it actually cost him to retake and resell the piano. This case is of interest as it was contended by the Plaintiff's Counsel, that no matter what the agreement said, any one seizing property under a lien note in this way is entitled to charge only $1.00 for taking possession and a commission of three per cent on the sale. The remaining case of the Great West Lumber Co. vs. C. C. Grant and F. R. Pennefather consumed two entire days. This action was brought to obtain a title to the Millsite premises in Red Deer, and involved many legal complications. The evidence was very contradictory, the officers of the Company swearing that they had made extensive improvements and paid certain sums to the defendants for the land under a verbal agreement and that they were therefore entitled to the land, the Defendants on the other hand contending that the improvements were made under a written option which had not been taken up within the time limit, and afterwards under an assignment from Mr. Bawtinheimer who had a ten year lease for the premises, and that the payments made were not payments on the land in question but were made in payment of stumpage for logs on the timber limits operated in connection with the mill premises. In both civil cases judgement was reserved and the remaining cases were adjourned until the 30th day of July next, when they will be tried, the small debt case having precedence and to be tried first.

National Steel Ranges

Have been thoroughly tested with Test and Time. They are not a new creation—110 of these Ranges are in use in this district. All customers agree that they are perfect bakers, with small amount of fuel. Moreover, it is surprising the small amount of repairs that these Ranges require, proving that nothing but the best grades of steel are used in their construction.

Have you seen the "Canada." Prices are no higher than many inferior ranges.

Presentation and Address.

We clip the following from the St. Thomas evening Journal of May 27th, with regard to Mr. John Crawford who is about to join his son J. L. Crawford, barrister of Red Deer:

Mr. J. Crawford, who is about leaving Aylmer for the Canadian Northwest, and who has been for some years a faithful and painstaking teacher in the Methodist Sunday School, was yesterday presented with a teacher's bible and the following address by his class. The address was read by Miss Edith Summers, and the presentation made by Miss Maud Smith:

Mr. John Crawford.
Aylmer, Ont.

Dear Teacher: With feelings of the deepest regret, we, the members of your Sunday School class, learn that you are about to leave Aylmer to make your home in Western Canada. Let us assure you that we fully realize the loss we are about to sustain. The invariable kindness you have shown us, and the clearness and fidelity with which you have explained the scriptures will always remain with us. As a mark of our heartfelt appreciation will you kindly accept this bible? At the same time we wish you and yours all joy and happiness in your new home, where we trust you may continue in the good work as teacher of the gospel, for which you are so well qualified.

Signed:

Most Wonderful Cave in the World.

The most wonderful cave in the world is in the island of Tonga, in the south Pacific. Byron called it "a chapel of the seas." It is formed in a rock that is almost surrounded by the ocean. This rock is about sixty feet high and broad proportionately. Many years ago a boy, the son of a native chief, was chasing a huge turtle, when his game seemed to sink into the rock. The lad watched and waited until the tide fell, disclosing a small opening in the rock about six feet under low water mark. Diving boldly, the young hunter entered the aperture and, to his surprise, came to the surface inside the rock. The rock was hollow, and its interior was found afterward, when the natives explored it with torches, to contain many beautiful stalactites. When attacked and followed by enemies, the natives, who know the secret, leave their canoes, plunge into the water and disappear. Their foes linger, astonished at their disappearance, for no person not acquainted with it would suspect that the rock was hollow.

Origin of Two Familiar Proverbs.

It was the habit of the great Greek painter Apelles never to let a day pass, however busy he chanced to be, without practicing his hand by tracing the outline of some object, a custom which has now passed into a proverb—"No day without a line." He also made it a rule, when he had finished a canvas, to exhibit it to the view of those who visited his studio, while he himself, hidden behind the picture, would listen to their comments. It is said that once a shoemaker censured him for having painted a pair of shoes with one latchet too few. Next day the shoemaker, revisiting the studio, saw that the painter had corrected the mistake. He then began to criticise the leg of the portrait, upon which Apelles came forward and reminded him that a shoemaker should not go beyond the shoes, a piece of advice which has also crystallized into a proverb, "Let the cobbler Stick to his last."—Pliny the Elder.

At Sea In a Coffin.

It was the French assassin Lupi who escaped to sea from Cayenne in a coffin. He managed to get some nails, tar and cotton, and one dark night he got into the coffin shed. He selected a fine, staunch and seaworthy coffin and fastened the lid in order to turn it into a deck, leaving a cockpit sufficient to enable him to crawl in. He calked all the joints as well as he could, and when this work was finished he made a pair of paddles out of two planks. Then he brought out his craft with great precaution. Without much difficulty he reached the water's edge. Silently and slowly he proceeded in the hope of reaching either Venezuela or British Guiana, 150 nautical miles distant. Fortunately or unfortunately for Lupi, the steamer Abeille, returning from the Antilles, off Paramaribo picked him up, half drowned and almost in a fainting condition, and a few hours later he was in irons in his cell.

Too Long Winded.

The inhabitants of the Canary isles, finding themselves oppressed by famine, sent to the governor of Galicia one of their head men as an ambassador. They advised him not to lose himself in long winded talk. He promised and kept his word. He took with him a large number of sacks, and, arriving at the town where the governor was on the circuit, he opened one of them before him, saying only these words: "It is empty. Fill it."

The governor ordered this sack and the rest to be filled with meal, but he said to the speaker: "You had no need to tell us that the sack was empty nor that it was necessary to fill it. We should have readily guessed that. Another time be briefer in your talk."

Look Into Space.

A young man whose eyes had been troubling him consulted a New York oculist. "What you want to do," said the specialist, "is to take a trip every day on the ferry or in New Jersey, Long Island—any place where you can see long distances. Look up and down the river, across fields or, if the worst comes to the worst, go on the top of a skyscraper and scan the horizon from that point. The idea is to get distance. You use your eyes a great deal and always at close range. You can't use them any other way in town. Even when not reading or writing the vision is limited by small rooms and narrow streets. No matter in what direction you look, there is a blank wall not far away to shut off sight."

Travel Free.

"Conductor," said the gasping passenger, vainly trying to raise a window, "there are at least a billion microbes in this car."

"You ought to be able to stand that if the company can," growled the street car conductor. "We don't get a blamed cent for carrying 'em."

Lies Low.

"Of course she doesn't like discussions about ages."

"No. Usually when she's queried about hers she just says nothing, but lies low."

"Yes, or if she says anything she lies low?"

Convenient.

"So you have three pairs of glasses, professor?"

"Yes. One pair to read with, another for nearsightedness and a third pair to look for the other two with."

Laws are made by old people and by men. Youths and women want the exceptions, old people the rules.—Goethe.

ECZEMA AGAIN OVERCOME

ZAM-BUK CURES A CASE WHICH FOR TWO YEARS HAD DEFIED EVERY REMEDY TRIED

A Farmer's Grateful Testimony

No case of eczema, skin disease, or ulceration, should be despaired of until Zam-Buk has been applied. The case of Mr. Francis Penoit of St. Anne's (Man.), is a powerful illustration of Zam-Buk's efficacy. He says: "I suffered from eczema for two years, and tried a great number of remedies. None of them, however, seemed to do me any good. The ailment was mostly in my legs, and both these were actually raw from the knees down. A small sample box of Zam-Buk was given to me, and even so small a quantity as that did me a little good. I then obtained a proper supply, and by the time I had used a few boxes I was completely cured."

Zam-Buk differs from ordinary salves and embrocations in containing no animal oil or fat. It is compounded from rich, healing, herbal essences, and is an ideal natural combination of power and purity. It is highly antiseptic, and instantly kills bacilli and disease germs, which settling on to wounds and skin diseases set up festering, blood poison, etc. For cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, pimples, boils, skin eruptions, scalp sores, spreading sores, children's skin troubles, chafing sores, etc., Zam-Buk is unequalled. It also cures piles. All druggists and stores at 50c a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes for $2.50.

A South Dakota woman has contracted to furnish several English lords with 2,000 prairie dogs to assist in exterminating rabbits on the English game preserves.

PEEVISH AND CROSS

Peevish, cross babies are sick babies—the well baby is always happy. Perhaps there may be nothing to indicate just what is the matter, but you may depend upon it there is something troubling the little one or he would not be cross. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets will remove the cause and make baby happy. They are a certain cure for the minor ills of babyhood. Thousands of mothers keep them continually in the house to guard against the sudden illness of baby. A Tablet now and again will keep the little one well. Mrs. James Jewers, Beaver Harbor, N.S., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby as occasion required since she was a day old. They have always helped her, and now at a year and a half old she is a fine healthy child. The Tablets, I think, are indispensable to mothers of young children." Sold by druggists or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE CRAFTY WOLF.

Stories of His Man Eating Feats Said to Be Untrue.

A skeptical person calling himself St. Croix has been trying to find out whether wolves and bears are maligned by the popular stories of their man eating ways and writes his conclusions for Recreation.

First he tried running down the stories told in newspaper dispatches. Foiled in this effort, he turned to the Indians. They knew the gray wolf, having wintered and summered with him. Had they ever known of an Indian being killed by one? N-no, but Mingan was very crafty and very much to be dreaded.

Quite so. But, once for all, had he ever to their knowledge killed a man? No, but they had heard— So it went always the same intangible, unconfirmed rumor and the same absence of proof.

"Now for a few facts as to the wolf," writes St. Croix. "He can go eight days without food and can then eat forty pounds of meat at a sitting, so the Indians say. This is pretty fate for an animal weighing but eighty pounds. Yet we do not know the length of the sitting.

"The wolf will not venture on glare ice; he never crosses a lake until there is enough snow to hide the ice. To wetting his feet he is as averse as the domestic cat. He will not kill his game in the shelter of the forest, always driving it into some open place for the kill.

"When chasing a deer, he goes at a leisurely lope, sitting down at intervals to give the most dolorous and bloodcurdling howls. This drives the poor victim into a wild gallop and soon exhausts it, and as the wolf never tires he is sure sooner or later to catch up with the quarry.

"In winter the deer often makes for some wild rapid, into which it plunges, knowing that the wolf will not follow. Too often the deer drowns, but better such a death than one by the fangs.

"In summer a couple of wolves will secure all the deer they need by very simple tactics. Having put up the quarry, one wolf drives it by easy stages to some little lake—I speak now of the Laurentian country—and on reaching the shore the deer plunges unhesitatingly in, for its instinct tells it the enemy will not dare to follow.

"So on it swims, while the pursuer sits on his haunches and howls dismally, no doubt because he sees his dinner escaping. At length the tired deer drags itself wearily from the water and shakes the drops from its coat on the sun warmed strand. Then the companion wolf, which has waylaid its coming, springs at its throat, and when the first wolf joins him they have a gorge that makes them independent of fate for a whole week."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

There is a little wolf and a little rabbit in every man.

One way to be unhappy is to envy the happiness of others.

A lucky man always points with pride to his good judgment.

How many things there are in a grocery store you never will call for!

If you want to oblige a friend, do something for him his way instead of your own way.

A great many people see themselves as others see them, but they don't believe what they see.

Ever occur to you that many of your sorrows are silly sorrows—that is, sorrows that are not important?

Education is a great thing, no doubt, but the best housekeepers didn't get their knowledge out of books.

The Impression He Gave.

His honor Judge Willis, on one occasion going home in an omnibus which landed him at an inn known as the Green Man, as usual passed the time in friendly discourse with the passengers. To one housewife who had been marketing he remarked that, owing to free trade, she was enabled to buy much more for her money than if she lived in a tariff country. To others he talked freely and dispensed counsel and advice indiscriminately. Arrived at his destination, he intimated to the conductor, "I want to get out at the Green Man." Accordingly the omnibus slowed down, but as he was leaving his seat a lady touched him on the sleeve and earnestly inquired, "My good man, don't you think you've had enough?"—London 'Tit-Bits.

"Old Hundredth."

"Old Hundredth" has been variously ascribed to Martin Luther, Dr. John Dowland and William Franck. Dr. Lowell Mason wrote quite a treatise on the old tune in 1852, saying emphatically that it was written by Guillaume (William) Franck in 1543. But later musical historians and antiquarians who have investigated more closely say it was composed by Louis Bourgeois, born about 1500 and died about 1572—some say in the massacre of St. Bartholomew, in 1551-52.

Time's Changes.

"You," said she as she came down the stairs leisurely pulling on her gloves—"you used to say I was worth my weight in gold."

"Well, what if I did?" he asked, looking at his watch for the third time in fifteen minutes.

"And now you don't think I'm worth a wait of two minutes."

They Go Together.

"Any bottles? Any rags?"

"Queer combination you deal in, my friend."

"Not so queer. People as has bottles generally has rags."

Knew His Place.

The village carpenter had given so generously of his services and sound advice toward rebuilding the little memorial chapel that when it was completed all the summer people agreed that he should be asked to speak after the luncheon which was to follow the dedication exercises. The day and the carpenter's turn came duly.

"Ladies and gentlemen, dear friends," he began, his good brown face very red indeed, "I am a good deal better fitted for the scaffold than for public speaking."

Then he realized what he had said and sat down amid roars of laughter.

THE MOON'S VOLCANOES.

Causes of the Gigantic Craters and Great Fissure Eruptions.

It is evident to any one who glances upward at the moon that its volcanoes are on an immensely larger scale than those which stud our globe. One explanation, now abandoned, is that the force of gravitation being there only one-sixth that of the earth the matter expelled from a crater would be spread far more widely, and explosions would be generally on a far more magnificent scale. Professor Pickering quotes this theory only to refute it in some comparisons which he made between the great volcanic region of Hawaii and one of the smaller craters of the moon. The facts seem to him to be that the larger craters on the moon came into existence when the thin, solid crust covering the molten interior was, owing to the solidification and contraction of the crust, much too small to contain the liquid material. The craters were therefore formed by the lava bursting through the crust and so relieving the pressure. Later, after this relief had been found and the crust had thickened, the interior regions by cooling shrank away from the solid shell, which was now too large and, being insufficiently supported, caved in, permitting the great fissure eruptions which produced the so called lunar seas. These extensive outflows of lava dissolved the original solid shell whenever they came into contact with it, much as they do in the present day in Hawaii. Had the moon been much smaller these eruptions might not have occurred at all, and if the moon had been much larger their relative size would have been greater. Most probably on the earth similar outbursts were greater, and our original gigantic craters were destroyed by the outflow of the earlier archaic rocks which completely submerged and dissolved them. —London Post.

THE ESKIMO BABY.

How the Little One Is Carried and Cared For by the Mother.

The arrival in the world of the youthful Eskimo is not greeted by the orthodox cradle and swaddling clothes. Practically till he can shift for himself he lives absolutely naked inside his mother's sealskin blouse, akin to skin keeping him warm.

This arrangement allows the mother to go about her work almost immediately, and she can also travel and hunt without a perambulator and without having to leave any one at home to mind the baby. The mother's dress is almost exactly like the father's, except that it has a long sort of tail reaching nearly to the ground, embryo, no doubt, of the modern "train."

Spared the miseries of soap and water and early weaned to the readily swallowed diet of blubber and raw seal meat, the infant rapidly develops that invaluable layer of subcutaneous fat which, while it enhances the "jolly" appearance of the lads and the shapeliness of the maidens, assists materially in economy in clothing.

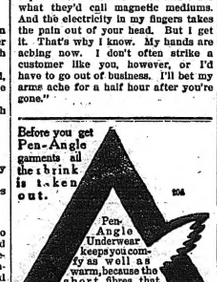

Thus in their frigid clime, once in their skin coats, the whole family will divest themselves of every stitch of clothing, unembarrassed by the fact that so many families share the tent with them. Sociability is early developed when one's next door neighbor on each side is only separated by an imaginary line between the deerskin you sleep on and the one he uses. The winter deerskin serves as bed and bedding at last and as interior furniture during the day. Community of goods is almost imperative under this arrangement. Thus when one kills a seal all are fed, and likewise when he doesn't all go hungry together.

Magnetic Mediums.

"You've got a pretty bad headache, sir, haven't you?" asked the barber, giving a dry shampoo.

"That's just what's bothering me," replied the man in the chair. "But how did you know?"

"Tell it by my wrists and hands," explained the barber. "You and I are what they'd call magnetic mediums. And the electricity in my fingers takes the pain out of your head. But I get it. That's why I know. My hands are aching now. I don't often strike a customer like you, however, or I'd have to go out of business. I'll bet my arms ache for a half hour after you're gone."

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS.

Sources of Many Sayings We Are Frequently Using.

Some of the most familiar quotations have the most unfamiliar sources. Two, which are ordinarily attributed to the Bible, are: "Cleanliness is next to godliness" and "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." The former is from the "Journal" of John Wesley, one of the founders of Methodism, and the latter is from Sterne's "Sentimental Journey." Sterne was a rector of the Church of England.

"Better late than never" is an everyday expression, yet few know it to be from Don Quixote. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is of most familiar utterance. It occurs in Keat's Endymion. "Brevity is the soul of wit" is in daily use by people who do not remember that it was written by no less a personage than Shakespeare in "Hamlet."

"Care will kill a cat, therefore let's be merry," has a Shakespearean sound, but in truth is from the pen of George Withers.

He that complies against his will
Is of the same opinion still.

A well-known expression, yet few people have ever read Samuel Butler's "Hudibras," the great satire in which it occurs.

"For men must work and women must weep" has been made more familiar through the poem, Kingsley's "Three Fishers," being set to music.

In Scott's "Marmion" occurs the couplet:

Oh, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practice to deceive.

A quotation every child hears in its lessons on integrity.

The hostess, wishing to pay delicate tribute to her guest, speaks of her visit as being "Like angel visits, few and far between," which expression originated with Thomas Campbell in his "Pleasures of Hope." "Coming events cast their shadows before" is from the same source. Milton wrote "They also serve who only stand and wait." "Damn with faint praise" is from Alexander Pope, as is also: "Order is heaven's first law." Another familiar quotation from Pope is: "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," from his "Essay on Man," and yet a fourth well-known Pope quotation is: "A little learning is a dangerous thing."

Dryden is responsible for: "None but the brave deserves the fair," and also: "Men are but children of a larger growth," while from Thomas Gray we have: "Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

In Oliver Goldsmith's beautiful "Vicar of Wakefield" we find the following paragraph:

"Well, upon my word, Mrs. Primrose, you have the finest children in the whole country."

"Ay, neighbor," she would answer, "they are as heaven made them, handsome enough if they be good enough, for handsome is as handsome does."

College of Forestry.

At the Canadian Institute, Toronto, last week, Thomas Southworth took up the subject: "Do We Need a College of Forestry," and in a clear, incisive manner argued that such an institution, to affiliate with our agricultural schools would be of highly educative benefit in the preservation of our splendid timber resources in the north, and an important factor in the gradual reforestry of the denuded districts of older Ontario.

The scientific value of such a college would in a few years establish as a common practical knowledge in forest propagation what is now confined to the few who have made a special study of the question, and would enable our agricultural districts to regain in timber what is essential to the successful economy of every farming country, as well as the climatic beneficials in the way of regular rainfall and atmospheric moisture, both of which are essential to the highest results in crop production.

Prof. E. J. Zavitz of the Guelph Agricultural College gave an interesting lantern exhibition of "waste land planting," showing the success that had been attained in forest tree propagation and culture at the Ontario Agricultural College, as well as instances of successful forestry in various parts of the province.

Fought in the Rebellion.

Prince Edward county can proudly lay claim to having as a resident one of the oldest men of the Province in the person of Mr. John Fyfer, who recently celebrated his one hundred and third birthday. This very remarkable man is now living with his daughter, Mrs. Lovell, in the village of Bloomfield, near Picton. Despite his very long life, he is comparatively hale and hearty, though necessarily feeling his weight of years. While he is soon out of his home very little this winter, he was quite active about the village last summer. More than a centenarian, Mr. Fyfer was born in Liverpool, England, on April 12, 1804. He was married when 29 years of age, and with his wife emigrated to Canada in 1835. In 1837, during the rebellion, he was present and engaged at the battle of the Windmill near Prescott. For more than fifty years he farmed in the Burr settlement in this county. However, since the death of his wife eighteen years ago he has lived retired. During his long life he has never used liquor or tobacco in any form, and he attributes his long life to the abstemious habits he has practised.

Entr'acte Thirst.

If I were a man, confesses a writer in London Opinion, I would invariably before going to a theatre take a ten-mile walk, smoke a couple of strong cigars, and drink three bottles of lemonade or ice-cream soda.

Then when I had comfortably settled down I should sit there as contented as a log, and should not be impelled by an ever-recurring, insatiable thirst, by an uncontrollable muscular restlessness, or by a fever for nicotine, to tread upon the toes, disarrange the hair, and exasperate the tempers of the hapless women who a sad chance to be along the route of my perpetual goings out and comings in.

Independent Girls.

The girl of today no longer smokes the fragrant cigarette by stealth up the chimney of her bedroom. She plays golf with her men friends; she shops in Sloan street, unattended by a duenna; she drives in hansoms alone; she comes and goes as she pleases—in a thousand ways she tastes the joys of independence. And what is the result? A girl when she marries is much more of a companion for her husband, can manage his home better and takes up the role of hostess as to the manner born.—London World.

Whaling as Modern Business.

Whaling is a small enterprise compared with the great industry of long ago. The old lure, oil, is scarcely thought of today, the vegetable world having so completely supplanted the leviathan in the arts. The bone's the thing. It has never been higher in price, some $6.50 a pound today, and a right whale will average more than 25,000 pounds of bone. Two whales will yield a ship a dividend. Five is the average catch. It costs about $15,000, including advances to the personnel, inter deducted from their catch percentage, to outfit a ship for a summer in the Arctic. Often the catch is worth $120,000, of which about $25,000 goes to the skipper. There's money in whaling, often more than in mining and salmon canning, the north admits, and so even greater lawlessness exists than in those pursuits.

Minard's Liniment, Lumberman's Friend

English veterinary surgeons have discovered a new disease in dogs—motor heart. Symptoms are that dogs are very fond of riding in motor cars, but that their hearts can't stand it.

Some persons have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhoea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking, and green fruit, is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed no further trouble will be experienced.

CARD PLAYING.

It Brings to Light Many Curious Phases of Human Nature.

Card playing gives an observer an insight into one of the many curious phases of human nature—the almost universal belief in luck even among educated men of more than average intelligence.

One player I knew well—I must admit he also believed in astrology—absolutely refused to play cards during one special month in each year, because he had reason to believe that that month was unlucky to him. Yet he was one of the most level headed card players I have known and in ordinary matters a man of great common sense.

I was at one time intimately acquainted with a club where the stakes played for were comparatively high and where the players were, with hardly an exception, hard headed men who were keen about winning and who were at the same time a singularly social, kindly and liberal minded body of men.

Among the members was a very pleasant, quiet old gentleman whose only occupation was to spend his days at his club, and especially in its card room.

At the period when I first knew him he had ceased playing cards himself, but was extremely fond of watching other people play. He was the most inoffensive of spectators, never made comments or criticisms and simply amused himself in watching the fall of the cards.

Gradually, however, experience showed or was imagined to show that any player whose cards he overlooked held bad hands with, as it was asserted, an extraordinary regularity.

He invariably asked permission before sitting down beside a player, and the moment the player held bad cards he offered, without being asked, to leave the table, an offer which, I am ashamed to say, was invariably accepted.

To put the fact plainly, he was taboced from watching card playing because he was supposed to bring ill luck by the mere fact of his vicinity.—Pall Mall Magazine.

MARRED THE MUSIC.

Secret of the Poor Performance at a High Class Concert.

"Musical critics sometimes complain of what they call the roughness of an orchestral performance without always considering that the cause may be found in the instruments rather than in the performers." At least so says the leader of a St. Louis organization.

"There was some criticism of the orchestral numbers given at a concert last winter, but I know that the fault was not that of the men so much as of the instruments. Almost every player has at least two, sometimes three or four, instruments, and one at least is the best he can afford to buy. This is especially true in the case of the strings, for accidents will happen, and to be prepared against them string players have usually two or three violins—one for ordinary work, like teaching, dancing and rehearsing, and a superior violin for solos and concerts.

"Now, it happened that on the evening of the concert in question the weather was atrocious. It was answering and sleeting and raining by turns. A genuine violinist thinks about as much of his best fiddle as he does of his youngest child, and so on the concert night the string player thought to himself that he wouldn't take out his good fiddle. It might get damp or he might fall off the street car with it and smash it to splinters, so he resolved to leave it at home and take his everyday fiddle, thinking that in the ensemble nobody but himself would notice the difference.

"But every other string player thought the same thing, so most of them left their best violins at home and brought their practice instruments. The public didn't notice the difference, but the players and the leader did, and in an audience there are always people with almost miraculous ears for variations of tone, and some of these did the complaining."

Delaware's Ancient Law.

Delaware's ancient law requiring a bridegroom to give the state an indemnity bond never causes any serious trouble, and if the penalty was enforced it must have been a long while ago. The man going on the bridegroom's bond engages that the children that may come of the prospective union shall not become a charge upon the state.

WILL KISSING BE PROHIBITED

The Osculatory Process Denounced by Scientists as Extremely Dangerous—How the Danger Can be Removed.

A keen discussion is being carried on by some of the best scientists as to the danger and "crime" of kissing, led by Dr. Somers, Health Officer of Atlantic City, and Dr. Nalpasse, of the Medical Faculty of Paris. They charge the kiss with spreading grippe, scarlet fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough, typhoid fever, diphtheria, erysipelas, meningitis, tuberculosis, and many infectious skin diseases. They suggest legislation on the subject, and the posting of notices in railway stations, stores and other public places, but they say it would be useless to post them on verandahs, in cosy corners, porches, shady nooks, or moonlit lawns. They also propose compulsory legislation for methods of disinfection of the mouth and purifying the breath, especially with a view to the protection of the innocent babies who are particularly subject to infection. The greatest and most effective purifier and germ destroyer known to medical science for the mouth, throat and breath, as well as for the blood, stomach and lungs, is Psychine, and the triumph of the medical world that is attracting almost universal attention because of the wonderful results attained in the worst forms of throat troubles is told as a matter of experience in the following brief statement:

LONDON ELECTION AND HUG-THE-MACHINE PRESTON.

The latest scandal about the London election, which in itself is one of the greatest election scandals of this scandalous Laurier regime, is the pretence recently made by the defence in the conspiracy trial in Toronto, that W. T. R. Preston is a material witness for the defence, that his presence in Canada could not be secured, and upon that plea the defence asked for a postponement of the trial. Now everybody knows that that cannot well be regarded as anything but false pretence. Everybody knows that if Mr. Hyman and his friends really wanted Mr. Preston in Canada, they could have had him, as he is entirely in the hands of the Government, and if Mr. Hyman had wanted him for defence in the conspiracy trial connected with the London election, the Government would promptly have ordered him to Canada. Instead of that the Government has ordered Mr. Preston to get away from, and stay away from Canada just about as far as the size of the globe will permit. An Ottawa despatch pertinently notes:

"While the postponement of the London election conspiracy trial is alleged to be due to the difficulty of getting Mr. Preston's testimony, the real circumstance seems to be that Mr. Preston has kept out of the way in order to postpone further exposures, Mr. Preston has had no public duties which kept him away. He was not wanted in England, for he has been removed from the London office. The Department has undone much of Mr. Preston's work. It cancelled his North Atlantic contract. It reappointed Mr. Just, whom he dismissed from the Emigration office just after Just had written to the Department showing how the Arundel printing job was given out at three times the right price. It had shown confidence in Mr. Jury, who accused Mr. Preston of corrupt practices in office and declared that he could not be believed on oath. But instead of bringing Mr. Preston home and ordering him to tell the truth about the ballot switching operations described by the witness Pritchett, the government appointed him at an increased salary on a pretended missian to Japan.

"Mr. Preston did not go to Japan, but to Sonth Africa. He did nothing there so far as can be learned except advertise Rhodesia at the expense of Canada. Some sort of trumped up mission to Australia was next devised, but the whole thing appears to be a scheme to keep Preston away without giving him any responsible duties. Now the "Hug-the-Machine" character is on the way to Hong Kong. The one thing which Mr. Preston could do for the public benefit was to lend his efforts to clear up that Augean stable at home. This is the only thing that he has avoided doing, and his name is now used as an excuse to prevent the performance of that wholesome duty by anyone else."

The Crops.

Although the season has been a very late one, crops in the Red Deer district are looking as well as they ever did at this time of year.

Fall wheat is high enough to wave in the wind and a bumper crop is assured as the severe winter did not appear to do any damage outside of a few high knolls. At least one hundred per cent increase over last year's crop is expected.

All spring crops are looking first class and seeding was practically completed last week although a small quantity of six rowed barley will be seeded this week.

Never in the history of the west has crops appeared to start better than this year. More care has been taken in selecting seed, and the catch is better and almost every field has a look of uniform evenness not seen for years.

Some twelve years ago a season similar to this occurred. A severe winter with lots of snow was followed by a late spring, farmers did not get on their land until the first of May. That year will long be remembered by old timers. It was the best in the history of the province. After spring once opened up there was no set back to crops until harvest arrived and all grains were heavy even for Alberta and the yield was phenomenal. We believe the present will be a repetition of that year, and with good prices for everything the settler has to sell, that there are good times ahead of the people of Alberta.

The Calgary Albertan twits the Edmonton Journal with being the only conservative newspaper in Alberta. We assure the Albertan that there are others in this great province who have not bowed the knee to Baal, and who stand shoulder to shoulder with the Journal for the principles laid down by the grand old party. The Albertan's weakness appears to be its anxiety to impress upon the world at large that it is a liberal newspaper. If its readers were not reminded of the fact about six times a week they might forget it.

The fact of the matter is the newspapers are to busy making history for this great western country to devote much time to politics.

The Calgary News says notwithstanding the opinions of Messrs. Walker and Wilkie, public ownership in the West has come to stay, and they will never be able to persuade the people here that this country will go to the "demnition bow-wows" unless it is handed over wholly, solely and unconditionally to the monopolies that make the rich richer and the poor poorer.

Indications multiply that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is about to go to the country. His sudden return preceded by Hon. Clifford Sifton is significient. Liberal conventions are being called all over the country, and Mr. Emmerson's meeting at Moncton was undoubtedly assembled to feel the party pulse in Westmoreland and to insure his standing again for parliament.

If the parties at Ottawa changed places to morrow this western country would change with them and in place of the north having the strongest liberal constituencies in the Dominion they would be conservative. The foreign element, not conversant with our politics, are with the government anyway.

Perry intends making another dash for the north pole. As he was only about 200 miles from reaching the coveted prize last trip he feels confident of covering the entire distance this time. He hopes to have his relay system so perfect that it will be an easy matter to complete the final stages of the journey.

We hope it will be in the good old summer time when the races show up on the 13th and 14th. We do not want to give the visitors a chilly reception.

POULTRY FATTENING STATIONS.

The Department of Agriculture has completed the arrangements for the co-operative fattening stations being organized at a number of Government and private creameries throughout the province. A few of these stations will fatten fowl during June as this brings the birds onto the market at a season of the year when practically no poultry is offered for sale and thus should be sold to advantage. Crate fed fowl always command a better price at this time than when offered for sale in the fall because then the market is flooded with chicken.

During the fall months there will be ample supplies of chicken for fattening purposes and it is therefore proposed to induce farmers to lessen the number of birds to be handled in the fall by fattening during June and July, before the rushing season begins, the fowl which they wish to dispose of. In view of this it has been decided not to accept any fowl for fattening after the regular work of fattening chickens in the fall has been started.

The fattening of fowl as above proposed by the Department is a move in the right direction, for experiments have shown that hens, after they are two years old, are practically worthless as egg producers. Well developed pullets have been proven to be the more suitable for egg production and experiments have further demonstrated the important fact that 10 pullets are equal to 17 year-olds or 24 two-year-olds in their ability to lay eggs.

The advance price to be paid for birds at the poultry fattening stations this season will be 8c for fowl and 10c for chicken.

Parties having fowl to fatten should communicate at once with the manager of the nearest creamery.

THE DUTY IMPOSED ON BANKS.

The Toronto Globe looks upon the Imperial Bank's action in issuing five millions of new stock as one that will lend stability to that banking institution. It also it says, shows a determination to meet the growing needs of the business community. "If our leading banking institutions are open to criticism it is because they have been somewhat conservative in their appreciation of the growing demand for banking capital. A demand will also bring a supply and it is far better that it be fairly and amply met by the old established institutions than by the multiplying of chartered banks. The privileges granted in bank charters impose the duty of meeting the needs of the business community, and the banks should be prepared, by the necessary increase of capital to provide for present and prospective expansion. Any failure or excessive caution in this regard will tend to promote the establishment of new banks, and as there is always a difficulty in securing capable and competent management, such accessions may become a source of weakness to the banking business. The apparently large dividends may tempt new enterprises. In reality the tempting profits are the result of long years of careful management and widely ramified business connections. They also represent interest on reserves approaching and sometimes exceeding the total capital these sources of income should be considered by those who expect large returns for new banking enterprises. So long as abundant banking capital is furnished the public have no reason to complain about the increasing of bank reserves. But stockholders have a right to consideration, and general plans for increasing capital should be designed as to enable them to secure the benefits of their investments. The municipalities can help the banks to meet the situation by postponing unnecessary expenditures till a reaction makes both capital and labor more abundant."

An old gentleman named Parent aged 70, down in Montreal, mixed up a quantity of flour for pancakes, in his wife's absence, and put "rough on rats" instead of baking powder in the mixture, by mistake. His four children recovered after being deathly sick, but the old man died.

"Government organs announce that on the financial year which closes March 31st, the revenue exceeded the expenditure to the extent that there is a surplus of eighteen million dollars. In the same issue they tell us Mr. Fielding has made a temporary loan of ten millions, and has gone to England to see about borrowing more. If he had a surplus of eighteen millions why had he to go to the Banks to borrow ten? It is the old deception of the electors by means of drawing a distinction between ordinary and extraordinary expenditure."—Huntingdon Gleaner (Liberal).

With enough wheat in the west to keep three hundred cars a day busy up to September, and wheat a dollar a bushel there should be no fear of hard times.

TALE OF THEIR CRIMES.

Offences Committed by John Chinaman on the Rand.

The annual report of the Foreign Labor Department, Johannesburg, 1905-6, has been published.

Dealing with the administration of the law, the report states: "One then found oneself face to face with a veritable Chinese crime. The coolies, having been protected against rough-and-ready justice, administered by unauthorized persons, inveighed against the justice meted out to them in the regular courts of the colony, and, on one minute at least, petitioned for a reversion to the status quo ante."

Long List of Crime.

The tale of crime for the year is a long one. The average number of laborers employed during that period was 47,000, and the total number convicted for all offences was 13,532. Of these, 11,754 were convicted of offences against the regulations made under the ordinance, most of them being of a very trivial nature. Cases of desertion, in the accepted sense of the word, amounted to about 1,700. This left a balance of between 1,700 and 1,800 to be accounted for, and official returns show that 243 have been convicted before a judge and jury, 25 of murder, seven of attempted murder, and 210 of housebreaking.

On these figures the report says that the Chinese coolie has undoubtedly been guilty of acts, involving serious loss of life, calculated to cause righteous indignation and alarm, and these no one seeks to palliate. Still, in the case of white residents, robbery, not murder, has been his motive, and it was only when resistance on the part of the male householder was offered that the latter came to an untimely end, and it should be particularly noted that not a single case of assaults upon women has even been proved.

All Born Gamblers.

The great predisposing cause of all Chinese crime in the mines is gambling, and its resultant debt, to a lesser degree supplemented by illicit traffic in opium. The opium habit is fostered and kept alive by certain unprincipled whites, who combine to do almost as great an illicit trade in this commodity as is done in liquor sold to the Kaffirs by the same class.

During the quarter ending June last, the average month's mining population was: White, 19,512; yellow, 51,020; black, 111,034; a total of 181,568. The number of coolies repatriated during the year was 3,003.

"CAT WORSHIP."

Father Vaughan Asks "Why Not Rats?"

Members of the "Smart Set", still go to Farm street Church to enjoy the luxury of hearing themselves denounced by Father Vaughan. Every Sunday morning the occupants of many motor-cars and carriages have to return disappointed, unable to find room in the crowded building.

Some of the congregation pay a shilling each and others sixpence for their seats.

Father Vaughan said that as many people thought his denunciation of cat-and-dog worship in "Society" was condemnation of what did not exist in fact, he might refer them not merely to servants who were kept up during the night nursing the little beasts, and to cooks who cater for them, but to veterinary surgeons who attended them in their diseases, and to undertakers who furnished their funerals, as well as to printers who sent out in deep mourning memorial cards with invitations to drawing-room services, ending with the salutation, "Not adieu, but au revoir," whatever that might mean. Did it mean they were all going to the dogs?

FATHER VAUGHAN.

Women would be better employed dandling children on their knees than scandalizing the community by pouring out god-like love on these creatures. Fie upon them and upon those who encouraged them. Why did not they go on to rats and mice; if one animal has a right to it, all animals had.

He was assured that a noble lord who lived in a hunting county had never heard of such people as he had referred to. All he could say was that it did his lordship great credit.

No More Seasickness.

Sir William H. White, one of the greatest British experts on shipbuilding, said at a meeting of the Institution of Naval Architecture the other day that from personal observation he could certify to the remarkable steadying effect on a vessel of Dr. Schlick's gyroscopic apparatus. In all cases its effect was to extinguish the rolling motion of the ship almost immediately. The vessel on which he observed the workings of the apparatus was practically deprived by it of all rolling motion as she lay broadside to the sea. Sir William expressed the opinion that the apparatus would have great utility attached to Channel and coasting passenger steamers. Gyroscopes could also be designed which would have a steadying effect on the largest ocean steamships. Applied to warships, they undoubtedly would give greater steadiness to gun platforms.

FOREST PLANTING.

Very Young Trees Used—Are Cheaper to Raise and Easier to Handle.

Forestry planting differs much from other tree planting in the size of the trees planted. The trees commonly used for this purpose average about a foot in height, and may run up to eighteen inches; evergreen, or coniferous, trees may run quite a little below this.

There are several reasons why such small trees are used. Very prominent among these is the question of cheapness in raising, handling and transporting the seedling trees. It goes without saying, for instance, that it will be cheaper to have ground occupied by seedlings only two years and then have it free for another lot of seedlings, rather to keep these lot of seedlings over for a year or two more and have them occupy ground that might be used meanwhile in raising more seedlings.

Save In the Cost.

There is also saved the cost of transplanting which would be necessary if proper care were taken of the older seedlings.

Seedlings of hardwood, or broad-leaved, trees older than two years are seldom used in forest planting. This is because the broad-leaved trees very early develop a strong system of roots; and an oak, for instance, or a hickory or a black locust of over two years is not at all easy to get up out of the ground and put in again. In fact, nut trees can pretty safely be planted (unless there is danger from animals to the young trees) by making a hole three or four inches deep with a pointed stick or iron tool, and placing in the hole three or four nuts.

Evergreens Easily Handled.

Evergreen (or coniferous) trees can be easily handled at twice the age given for broad-leaved seedlings, because the coniferous trees are of much slower growth and do not form their roots nearly as rapidly as broad-leaved trees.

Young trees of the age named stand transplanting and putting out on the area to be planted better than older trees do, and the roots are less likely to be injured. Transplanting is at best a severe wrench to the trees, and the younger trees are less affected by this than older ones.

Wild stock may be used as well as stock bought from a nursery. This may often be got along roadsides or on the borders of woodlands. The young trees (maple, for example) should always be taken from such open places rather than from deep woods; if they are taken from the interior of the woods, the change is apt to be too violent for them, and the plant suffers.

New Strawberries.

Greater progress has been made the last three or four years along the strawberry line than ever before. The Sample is about the only variety that holds its own, but from present indications even that berry will be set one side. The Cardinal, a pistillate variety like the Sample, just now is creating quite a sensation. The illustration here shown was taken from a cluster of last season and is a correct likeness of the berry, not one of those overgrown berries, but will average good size, an immense cropper and the most vigorous growing plant ever sent out. It will be a mortgage lifter, says an eastern grower in American Cultivator. Golden Gate is another new berry of great promise. This is a fancy berry, like the Marshall, only it is worth a dozen of it, being of fine quality and a good cropper.

The Abington, sent out two years ago, has proved about what the originator claimed and is a safe berry to plant.

Another berry, the Dicky, that has not been put upon the market yet is a strong, staminate variety, an immense cropper, very firm, colors well and is a long season berry. I have no plants of it on my grounds, but as soon as I can I shall set largely of it.

Productivity of Weeds.

Weeds multiply very rapidly. A single plant of pepper grass will produce 12,000 seeds, dandelion 19,000, shepherd's purse 37,000, wheat thief 7,000, ragweed 5,000, purslane 375,000, plantain 47,000 and burdock 43,000. The importance of not allowing a single weed to produce seed cannot be alluded to too frequently. A single hour's work in destroying weeds may save weeks of labor next season.

Dairy Notes.

Excitement not only checks the flow of milk in a cow, but reduces the percentage of fat in the milk.

Feeding too much is bad, and feeding too little is bad. Never feed more than the animal will eat up clean.

An extra yield of butter will naturally follow the use of richer food if the cow has been well selected, but a similar result may not follow in the case of an ordinary cow.

Alfalfa For Poultry.

Every farmer who makes a specialty of poultry should plant a patch of alfalfa. It makes excellent pasture for the fowls in summer and can be cut for hay for winter use.

Farmers of Red Deer District.

We are now located in our new warehouse just north of Brackman-Ker elevator, and we extend to every farmer an invitation to call in and see us and our new warehouse, as well as our complete stock.

Now that seeding is about over, you must get in shape for the Mower and Rake and Binder season.

MOWERS.

Our No. 15 and 16 Mower cannot be equalled for strength and cutting qualities. These Mowers have now been sold for three seasons, and we have yet to find a man who has used them make any complaint. The steel knife heel and pitman ends are far superior to those of Malleable Iron used by others.

The finger bar and knife back on these mowers are of cold rolled steel and adjustable wearing plates are provided for taking up wear.

The under draft increases the traction of drive wheels. The flexible snathboard prevents bunching of the hay and breaking of the board.

There is no lost motion on these mowers; the knife operates the instant the wheels begin to turn, thus avoiding the necessity of backing up to start cutting.

Brass Bushing, Ball and Roller bearings used where best adapted to requirements of each position.

Wheels are high and wide in face.

These mowers are noted for sure cutting, long draft and long life.

RAKES.

Massey-Harris, All Steel, Self Dump.

It has ratchet dump
It has great capacity
It has the famous oil tempered steel teeth
It has six cleaner teeth
It has an all steel frame

The Two Vanrevels

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "The Gentleman from Indiana" and "Monsieur Beaucaire"

Copyright, 1902, by S. S. McClure Co.

Together they ran through the hall to the library. Crailey was lying on the long sofa, his eyes closed, his head like a piece of carven marble, the gay uniform in which he had tricked himself out so gallantly open at the throat and his white linen stained with a few little splotches of red.

Beside him knelt Miss Betty, holding her lace handkerchief upon his breast. She was as white as he and as motionless, so that as she knelt there, immovable, beside him, her arm, like a statue, across his breast, they might have been a sculptor's group. The handkerchief was stained a little, like the linen, and, like it, too, stained but a little. Near by on the floor stood a flask of brandy and a pitcher of water.

"You!" Miss Betty's face showed no change nor even a faint surprise as her eyes fell upon Tom Vanrevel, but her lips soundlessly framed the word, "You!"

Tom flung himself on his knees beside her.

"Crailey!" he cried in a sharp voice that had a terrible shake in it. "Crailey! Crailey, I want you to hear me!" He took one of the limp hands in his and began to chafe it, while Mrs. Tanberry grasped the other.

"There's still a movement in the pulse," she faltered.

"Still!" echoed Tom roughly. "You're mad! You made me think Crailey was dead! Do you think Crailey Gray is going to die? He couldn't, I tell you—he couldn't. You don't know him! Who's gone for the doctor?" He dashed some brandy upon his handkerchief and set it to the white lips.

"Mamie. She was here in the room with me when it happened."

"'Happened! Happened!'" he mocked her furiously. "'Happened' is a beautiful word!"

"God forgive me!" sobbed Mrs. Tanberry. "I was sitting in the library, and Mamie had just come from you, when we heard Mr. Carewe shout from the cupola room, 'Stand away from my daughter, Vanrevel, and take this like a dog!' Only that, and Mamie and I ran to the window, and we saw through the dusk a man in uniform leap back from Miss Betty—they were in the little open space near the hedge. He called out something and waved his hand, but the shot came at the same time, and he fell. Even then I was sure, in spite of what Mamie had said, I was as sure as Robert Carewe was, that it was you. He came and took one look—and saw—and then Nelson brought the horses and made him mount and go. Mamie ran for the doctor, and Betty and I carried Crailey in. It was hard work."

Miss Betty's hand had fallen from Crailey's breast where Tom's took its place. She rose unsteadily to her feet and pushed back the hair from her forehead, shivering convulsively as she looked down at the motionless figure on the sofa.

"Crailey!" said Tom, in the same angry, shaking voice. "Crailey, you've got to rouse yourself! This won't do; you've got to be a man! Crailey!" He was trying to force the brandy through the tightly clinched teeth. "Crailey!"

"Crailey?" whispered Miss Betty, leaning heavily on the back of a chair. "Crailey?" She looked at Mrs. Tanberry with vague interrogation, but Mrs. Tanberry did not understand.

"Crailey!"

It was then that Crailey's eyelids fluttered and slowly opened and his wandering glance, dull at first, slowly grew clear and twinkling as it rested on the ashy, stricken face of his best friend.

"Tom," he said feebly, "it was worth the price to wear your clothes just once!"

And then at last Miss Betty saw and understood, for not the honest gentleman whom every one except Robert Carewe held in esteem and affection, not her father's enemy, Vanrevel, lay before her with the death wound in his breast for her sake, but that other, Crailey Gray, the ne'er-do-weel and light o' love—Crailey Gray, wit, poet and scapegrace, the well beloved town scamp.

He saw that she knew, and as his brightening eyes wandered up to her he smiled faintly. "Even a bad dog likes to have his day," he whispered.

CHAPTER XIX.

WILL CUMMINGS had abandoned the pen for the sword until such time as Santa Anna should cry for quarter, and had left the office in charge of an imported substitute, but late that night he came to his desk once more to write the story of the accident to Corporal Gray, and the tale that he wrote had been already put into writing by Tom Vanrevel as it fell from Crailey's lips after the doctor had come, so that none might doubt it. No one did doubt it. What reason had Mr. Carewe to injure Crailey Gray? Only five in Rouen knew the truth, for Nelson had gone with his master, and, except Mamie, the other servants of the Carewe household had been among the crowd in front of the Rouen House when the shot was fired.

So the story went over the town how Crailey had called to say goodby to Mrs. Tanberry; how Mr. Carewe happened to be examining the musket his father had carried in 1812 when the weapon was accidentally discharged, the ball entering Crailey's breast; how Mr. Carewe, stricken with remorse and horror over this frightful misfortune and suffering too severe anguish of mind to remain upon the scene of the tragedy which his carelessness had made, had fled, attended by his servant, and how they had leaped aboard the evening boat as it was pulling out and were now on their way down the river.

And this was the story, too, that Tom told Fanchon, for it was he who brought her to Crailey. Through the long night she knelt at Crailey's side, his hand always pressed to her breast or cheek, her eyes always upward and her lips moving with her prayers, not for Crailey to be spared, but that the Father would take good care of him in heaven till she came. "I had already given him up," she said to Tom once in a small voice. "I knew it was to come, and perhaps this way is better than that—I thought it would be far away from me. Now I can be with him, and perhaps I shall have him a little longer, for he was to have gone away before noon."

The morning sun rose upon a fair world, gay with bird chatterings from the big trees of the Carewe place and pleasant with the odors of Miss Betty's garden, and Crailey, lying upon the bed of the man who had shot him, hearkened and smiled goodby to the summer he loved; and, when the day broke, asked that the bed be moved so that he might lie close by the window. It was Tom who had borne him to that room. "I have carried him before this," he said, waving the others aside.

Not long after sunrise, when the bed had been moved near the window, Crailey begged Fanchon to bring him a miniature of his mother which he had given her and urged her to go for it herself. He wanted no hands but hers to touch it, he said. And when she had gone he asked to be left alone with Tom.

"Give me your hand, Tom," he said faintly. "I'd like to keep hold of it a minute or so. I couldn't have said that yesterday, could I, without causing us both horrible embarrassment? But I fancy I may, because I'm done for. That's too bad, isn't it? I'm very young, after all. Do you remember what poor Andre Chenier said as he went up to be guillotined?—There were things in this head of mine!' But I want to tell you what's been the matter with me. It was just my being a bad sort of poet. I suppose that I've never loved any one, yet I've cared more deeply than other men for every lovely thing I ever saw, and there's so little that hasn't loveliness in it. I'd be ashamed not to have cared for the beauty in all the women I've made love to—but about this one—the most beautiful of all—I'—

"She will understand," said Tom quickly.

"She will—yes—she's wise and good. If Fanchon knew, there wouldn't be even a memory left to her, and I don't think she'd live. And, do you know, I believe I've done a favor for Miss Betty in getting myself shot. Carewe will never come back. Tom, was ever a man's knavery so exactly the architect of his own destruction as mine? And for what gain? Just the excitement of the comedy from day to day, for she was sure to despise me as soon as she knew, and the desire to hear her voice say another kindly thing to me, and the everlasting perhaps in every woman, and this one the heart's desire of all the world! Ah, well! Tell me—I want to hear it from you—how many hours does the doctor say?"

"Hours, Crailey?" Tom's hand twitched pitifully in the other's feeble grasp. "I know it's only a few."

"They're all fools, doctors!" exclaimed Vanrevel fiercely.

"No, no. And I know that nothing can be done. You all see it, and you want me to go easily, or you wouldn't let me have my own way so much. It frightens me, I own up, to think that so soon I'll be wiser than the wisest in the world. Yet I always wanted to know. I've sought and I've sought—but now to go out alone on the search! It must be the search, for the Holy Grail—I'"—

"Please don't talk," begged Tom in a broken whisper, "for mercy's sake, lad. It wears on you so."

Crailey laughed weakly. "Do you think I could die peacefully without talking a great deal? There's one thing I want, Tom—I want to see all of them once more, all the old friends that are going down the river at noon. What harm could it do? I want them to come by here on their way to the boat, with the band and the new flag. But I want the band to play cheerfully! Ask 'em to play 'Rosin the Bow,' will you? I've never believed in mournfulness, and I don't want to see any of it now. It's the rankest impiety of all! And, besides, I want to see them as they'll be when they come marching home—they must look gay!'

"Ah, don't, lad, don't!" Tom flung one arm about the other's shoulder, and Crailey was silent, but rested his hand gently on his friend's head. In that attitude Fanchon found them when she came.

The volunteers gathered at the courthouse two hours before noon. They met each other dismally, speaking in undertones as they formed in lines of four, while their dispirited faces showed that the heart was out of them. Not so with the crowds of country folk and townspeople who lined the streets to see the last of them, for these, when the band came marching down the street and took its place, set up a royal cheering that grew louder as Jefferson Bareaud, the color bearer, carried the flag to the head of the procession. With the recruits marched the veterans of 1812 and the Indian wars, the one legged cobbler stumping along beside General Trumble, who looked very dejected and old. The lines stood in silence and responded to the cheering by quietly removing their hats, so that the people whispered that it was more like an Odd Fellows' Sunday funeral than the departure of enthusiastic patriots for the seat of war. General Trumble's was not the only sad face in the ranks. All were downcast and nervous, even those of the lads from the country, who had not known the comrade they were to leave behind.

Jefferson unfurled the flag, Marsh gave the word of command, the band began to play a quickstep, and the procession moved forward down the cheering lane of people, who waved little flags and handkerchiefs and threw their hats in the air as they shouted; but, contrary to expectation, the parade was not directly along Main street to the river. "Right wheel! March!" commanded Tappingham hoarsely, waving his sword, and Jefferson led the way into Carewe street.

"For God's sake, don't cry now!" and Tappingham with a large drop streaking down his own cheek turned savagely upon Lieutenant Cummings. "That isn't what he wants. He wants to see us looking cheering and smiling. We can do it for him this once, I guess! I never saw him any other way."

"You look very smiling yourself!" snuffled Will.

"I will when we turn in at the gates," retorted the captain. "On my soul I swear I'll kill every sniffling idiot that doesn't! In line, there!" he stormed facetiously at a big recruit.

The lively strains of the band and the shouting of the people grew louder and louder in the room where Crailey lay. His eyes glistened as he heard, and he smiled, not the old smile of the worldly prelate, but merrily, like a child when music is heard. The room was darkened, save for the light of the one window which fell softly upon his head and breast and upon another fair head close to his, where Fanchon knelt. In the shadows at one end of the room were Miss Betty and Mrs. Tanberry and Mrs. Bareaud and the white hair ed doctor who had said, "Let him have his own way in all he asks." Tom stood alone, close by the head of the couch.

"Here they come!"

"Hail to the band!" Crailey chuckled softly. "How the rogues keep the time! It's 'Rosin the Bow,' all right! Ah, that is as it should be. Mrs. Tanberry, you and I have one thing in common, if you'll let me flatter myself so far. We've always believed in good cheer, you and I, eh? The best of things, even if things are bad, dear lady, eh?"

"You darling vagabond!" Mrs. Tanberry murmured, trying to smile back to him.

"Hark to 'em!" said Crailey. "They're very near! Only hear the people cheer them! They'll 'march away so gayly,' won't they? And how right that is!" The vanguard appeared in the street, and over the hedge gleamed the oncoming banner, the fresh colors flying out on a strong breeze. Crailey greeted it with a breathless cry. "There's the flag—look, Fanchon, your flag!—waving above the hedge, and it's Jeff who carries it. Doesn't it always make you want to dance! Bravo, bravo!"

The procession halted for a moment in the street, and the music ceased. Then, with a jubilant flourish of brass and the roll of drums, the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," and Jefferson Bareaud proudly led the way through the gates and down the driveway, the bright silk streaming overhead. Behind him briskly marched the volunteers, with heads erect and cheerful faces, as they knew Corporal Gray wished to see them, their captain flourishing his sword in the air.

"Here they come! Do you see, Fanchon?" cried Crailey excitedly. "They are all there—Jeff and Tappingham and the two Madrilleno and Will, the dear old fellow—he'll never write a decent paragraph as long as he lives, God bless him!—and young Frank—what deviltries I've led the boy into!—and there's the old general, forgetting all the tiffs we've had. God bless them all and grant them all a safe return! What on earth are they taking off their hats for? Ah, goodby, boys, goodby!"

They saw the white face at the window and the slender hand fluttering its farewell, and Tappingham halted his men.

"Three times three for Corporal Gray!" he shouted, managing somehow to keep the smile upon his lips. "Three times three, and may he rejoin his company before we enter the Mexican capital!"

He beat the time for the thunderous cheers that they gave. The procession described a circle on the lawn and then, with the band playing and colors flying, passed out of the gates and took up the march to the wharf.

TORTURING RHEUMATISM

Suffered for Five Years—Cured by Dr. Williams Pink Pills

Agonizing pains, sometimes in one part of the body, sometimes in another, more often in the back or joints—that's rheumatism. Each day makes the disease worse—increases the torture. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands. They cured Mr. Horace Plante, of Sorel, Que., of a most aggravated case of rheumatism. I walked as if my boots were filled with pebbles. The pains, starting in my feet, spread to all parts of the body; my back and joints became affected. For upwards of five years I suffered the greatest agony. Often I was confined to bed, hardly able to move. Nothing seemed to help me. I despaired of ever being well again. By good chance Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention and I decided to try them. I got six boxes—before they were gone I felt a great improvement. I continued the treatment and my health gradually came back till now I do not feel the least pain—I am totally cured. It was a surprise to my friends to see me on the street again well and strong after five years of torture. They wanted to know what brought about the change. I told them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I took no other medicine once I began their use. Rheumatic sufferers give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial; they will surely do for you what they did for me.

It is the blood — poor blood — that such troubles as rheumatism, indigestion, dizziness, heart palpitation, anaemia, weakness and a host of other diseases find their root. It is the blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act on. They make it pure, rich, red and health-giving. That is why they cure all the common ailments of everyday life. Sold by druggists or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Danger In Linoleum Making.

In the manufacture of linoleum unprotected lights are allowed in the mixing department. This is on account of the great danger of exploding the cork dust floating in the air. An additional danger in linoleum making is that the mixture of cement and cork dust has a unpleasant tendency to spontaneously igniting if left in a warm place. It is therefore customary to mix the material a sackful at a time in order to reduce the risks of explosion.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the House

Babies and Cocoa.

A Parisian physician, Dr. Varot, read a paper before the Hospitals Medical society the other day, in which he said that a certain number of children had come under his notice who had been fed regularly upon cocoa since they had been weaned. The children liked this diet and in many cases refused any other form of nourishment. However, they soon began to suffer from constipation and anaemia; they were puffy, pale, did not gain in weight and became nervous and irritable.

FIRED ONLY JOKES.

The Way Judge Thacher Dodged a Challenge to a Duel.

Documents in the Congressional library at Washington show that when the establishment of the mint was under discussion in Washington's time there were some amusing debates in congress concerning the devices the coins should bear. There is one account of a squabble over the design for the silver dollar.

It appears that a member of the house from a southern state bitterly opposed the choice of the eagle on account of its being the "king of birds," and hence neither suitable nor proper to represent a nation whose institutions and interests were wholly inimical to monarchical forms of government.

Judge Thacher in reply had playfully suggested that perhaps a goose might suit the gentleman, as it was rather a bumble and republican bird and would also be serviceable in other respects, as the goslings would answer to place upon the dimes.

This reply created considerable merriment, and the irate southerner, considering the humorous rejoinder an insult, sent a challenge to Judge Thacher, who proudly declined it. The bearer, rather astonished, asked: "Will you be branded as a coward?"

"Certainly, if he pleases," replied Thacher. "I always was one, and he knew it, or he would never have risked a challenge."

The affair caused much mirth, but was finally adjusted, cordial relations being restored, the irritable southerner concluding that there was nothing to be gained in fighting one who fired nothing but jokes.

THE BRITISH BREAKFAST.

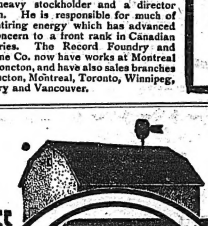

Trying In Its Monotony, Though the Food is Substantial.

A distinguished author once described an unripe persimmon as a fine incentive to generosity, since we would rather give it to another than eat it ourselves. And perhaps the English breakfast may be likened to the early persimmon.

Monotony is the keynote of the early meal in a British household—not but that the food is good and substantial, but there is a sameness year in and year out about the dishes that is trying indeed to an American. Here is a list of eatables and drinkables made up from the breakfast menu of ten middle class English households and ten purely English hotels:

Porridge, served with sugar and milk; ham and eggs, eggs and bacon, grilled ham, boiled and poached eggs, fried sausages, dried fish (herrings or haddocks), dry toast, white or brown bread and butter, marmalade or jam, tea or coffee.

The man or woman who has been accustomed to break the fast with wheat cakes and maple sirup, followed by grilled bluefish and a juicy porterhouse or pork tenderloin, helped out by freshly ground coffee, cranberry jelly, Virginian honey and a choice of a hundred or more delights in the way of bread and freshly baked cakes, sits down to breakfast in England with a sick

EXCITED NERVES, TWITCHING MUSCLES

System Exhausted by Worry and Loss of Sleep--- Perfect Health the Result of Using

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Such cures as this make it impossible to doubt the restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. E. J. Vanderburgh of Eastern Welland avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., states: "For twenty-one years I was hasty afflicted with heart trouble, nervousness and cramps in the limbs, also twitching of the muscles, and nervous headaches. I became weak, debilitated and emaciated. My condition was distressing and I was made worse through worry and loss of sleep.

"I tried a hundred remedies in vain, and reading about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I decided to try it. After having used half a dozen boxes of this preparation my old trouble had entirely vanished and I was enjoying better health than I had since girlhood. I am now past middle life and am in perfect health. I would not take worlds today and go back to my former state."

There is more or less mystery and doubt as to the specific action of many drugs, but it is positively and definitely known that iron forms new red corpuscles in the blood, or, in other words, makes the blood rich and nourishing.

But iron alone cannot be taken into a delicate stomach. The great secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is in the way iron is combined with certain other restoratives so as to make a preparation that can be used with the greatest benefit by even the most weak and delicate person.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is also slightly laxative as well as tonic in influence, and while building up the system insures the regular and healthful action of the digestive, filtering and excretory systems.

If you would enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and repair weakness and disease with health and vigor use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Most people would think that as man is, with very few exceptions, "right handed" he would be it the same time "right legged." But this is not the case. Almost every right handed man uses his left leg more than his right. For instance, most people find it much more natural to go around circles to the right than to the left. That is because they start with the left leg. Being stronger, it is more readily brought into action, and it is on this account that bodies of soldiery always start to march with the left foot. Almost all courses for footraces are made out for running to the right, and dancers will indorse the statement that the majority of movements are far more easily executed in that direction. The left foot is the one that is placed in the stirrup for mounting a horse, and in jumping it is from the left foot that the athlete "takes off." Thus it will be seen, as a general rule, "right handed" people are "left legged."

THE WEST NOT WORRYING.

Ottawa, May 28.—One official of the Interior Department summed up the crop situation when he said: "There is no need for alarm. If the lateness of the season is ominous of anything it is ominous of good crop prospects. The West is not worrying; it is the East which is showing all the anxiety.

TROUBLE AT OLDS.

PEOPLE OF TOWN REFUSE TO ALLOW C. P. R. TO CLOSE STREETS.

Olds, May 28.—The situation in the street crossing fight between the people of this town and the C. P. R. is still in the same condition of armed neutrality which prevailed last night. The gang which the company brought down to do the work on the streets are still here but inactive.

Last night the townspeople drove the C. P. R. navvies away and withstood any attempt to close the crossing. The people of this town are very determined in their stand against the attempts of the company to close certain streets which they want to be kept open.

A WARNING FROM A BANKER.

Mr. D. R. Wilkie, Says a few words to Municipalities.

Mr. D. R. Wilkie, president and general manager of the Imperial Bank sounded a note of warning to municipalities in his address to the share holders. He animadverted on the tendency of municipal corporations to incur indebtedness and make expenditures before they had arranged the funds.

Municipalities, he said, must realize that the money market was subject to much variation.

Many cities were now paying penalties because this fact had not been realized, and prices at the market had been refused by these corporations which still proceeded with the expenditures only to find later that their bonds were saleable at much greater discounts.

Mr. Wilkie pointed out that the market for municipal securities in Great Britain had under gone a drastic change in the past twenty years, and that the old country investor had excellent opportunities nearer home.

CUT WORMS IN THE FIELDS AND GARDENS.

Bearing in mind the enormous damage that was done by cut worms last spring, it will pay the farmer and garden owner to give a look to their crops as early as possible after they are sown and at any rate just as soon as the small plants begin to appear. The parent moths or millers were not very numerous last fall so that probably the cutworms will not be nearly so plentiful this spring as they were last, but for reports and from what has already been seen in the fields and gardens there is still risk of a good deal of damage from the depredations of these creatures this year.

These pests are very easily destroyed and the remedy consists in applying a mixture of bran and paris green to the surface of the ground in which the cutworms are harbouring. The creatures come out to the surface to feed at night and bran seems to be in great favor with them as a food, and when there is a judicious mixture of paris green alone with it they usually are quite satisfied with one meal. The mixture should be in the proportion of one pound of paris green to 50 pounds of bran, although some authorities prescribe double the quantity of bran to the same amount of paris green. The bran should be mixed with sweetened water till it is crumbly, not sloppy, and the paris green dusted on to it and thoroughly mixed. It may be applied with a piece of shingle or even the bare hand if only a small quantity is to be used. Many farmers found this treatment very effectual last year and indeed it is now recognized as the standard remedy all over the country wherever cut worms become a pest.

To prevent disappointment in the cabbage patch every plant should be protected by a screen of paper twisted on the stalk just above the roots and loosely enfolding the leaves. This forms an effectual barrier to the cutworm, is easily applied, and does not interfere with the growth of the cabbage.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba has decided that restaurants may sell fruit, nuts, ice cream, and cigars on Sunday the same as upon other days, to be consumed upon the premises or where ever the purchasers may elect, in spite of the interpretation of the Sunday observance act by the police commission.

Sudden Death.

(Dayslend Press)

At an early hour on Saturday morning, May 11th, Mrs. F. H. Stephenson, of this place, departed this life, aged twenty-eight years. On the day previous she had been feeling even better than usual and with her husband had been completing plans to move to their homestead, some forty-eight miles east of here, on the 17th inst., but in the evening she was taken suddenly ill, with heart trouble, and only lived a few hours. Deceased, whose maiden name was Myrtle Capron, was born in Minnesota, where she grew to womanhood. She there became a member of the Methodist Church, transferring her membership to Daysland upon coming here. She was married to Mr. Stephenson at Red Deer, and they came to Daysland about eighteen months ago. Besides the husband, two children are left—a boy aged four years, and a little girl aged ten months.

Mr. HUESTIS GOES TO RED DEER.

(The Edmonton Journal)

Rev. C. H. Huestis, who for the past three years has been pastor of the McDougall Methodist church in this city, has been transferred to Red Deer. This action was taken at the Annual Convention held in Calgary this week. Rev. Mr. Huestis will take the place of Rev. A. C. Farrell, who is being transferred to Medicine Hat, Rev. E. E. Marshall, of Ingersoll, Ont., has been appointed to the charge of McDougall Methodist church here.

During the time of his pastorate in this city Mr. Huestis has been very popular with all classes of his congregation, and has made many warm friends in this city.

The Red Deer church is to be congratulated on having secured so excellent a pastor. Mr. Huestis will preach in McDougall church twice before leaving, preaching his farewell sermon on Sunday, June 9th.

William Postill has been in from the ranch during the past week.

George H. Suckling, Nordheimer's oldest traveller, has been in town the past week rushing the piano business.

"A night with Wittier" at the Presbyterian church this Wednesday evening. A cordial invitation given to all to attend.

Our provincial member tells us in three columns of the Advocate what he has done for Red Deer. It would take the whole paper to tell us what he hasn't done.

Springbett & Bowhey have just received a shipment of the famous Tudhope buggies, democrats, and road wagons. Take a look at them before buying elsewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Drake left for Banff on Monday. Mr. Drake has been under the weather for some little time and the doctor has advised him to try a short time at the baths. He hopes to be back in a week's time.

The ladies guild of St. Luke's church will have a refreshment and lunch counter at the race meet on the 13th and 14th of June and the committee have secured the use of the Agricultural hall for that purpose.

Will Goard was in from his ranch on Monday and reported that a bear was committing depredations in his neighborhood and that it had killed one of his yearling steers. Will was taking out with him a load of cordite and shrapnel shells to fill his unruly visitor full of lead if he should come across him again.

Miss L. Fulmer was presented with a gold watch after the Wednesday evening service in the Presbyterian church last week as a slight recognition of her services as organist of the church for some time. Mrs. Malcolm made the presentation while Rev. Mr. Fortune made a fitting address. Mr. Morris has accepted the position as organist.

Walter Leslie, the Gaetz ave. machinist, was taken with a severe attack of heart trouble on Ross avenue Wednesday last and it was thought that he was dying. Dr. Collison was called and had him removed to his home where he gradually recovered although not able to be around much as yet.

Rev. A. C. Farrell preaches his farewell sermon on Sunday evening next. The last draft of the stationing committee of the conference appointed Mr. Farrell to Medicine Hat and he takes charge there after next Sunday. The rev. gentleman has made many warm friends since coming to Red Deer who will regret his departure.

Mrs. Jane Arnold died at the residence of her niece Mrs. Welton on Thursday evening last aged 75 years. Deceased was in poor health for a long time and bore her suffering with christian fortitude. She passed through the San Francisco earthquake with Mrs. and Miss Welton who were visiting her and they all returned to Alberta as quickly as they could. The funeral on Friday was conducted by Rev. Canon Hinchliffe interment taking place in the Red Deer cemetery.

The monthly meeting of the Red Deer branch of the Alberta Farmers association will be held at the fire hall on Friday afternoon next at 2 o'clock.

The contract for the desks for the new school was given to H. H. Gaetz at a recent meeting of the Board of Education. Besides the principal's and several teachers desks some 280 desks for pupils were ordered at a cost of about $1300.

Dr. Lenard Gaetz was confined to his bed last week very ill but we are pleased to say he is considerably better at the time of writing and strong hopes are entertained that his trip to the coast may not be delayed very long.

There will be no race meet at Innisfail this year although it was arranged at the meeting of the Central Alberta Turf Association that a meet would be held there on the 6th of June. The Province says it looks as if the turf association, once a flourishing institution, has become as moribund as the Board of Trade.

Henry Reinholt's fine Clyde stallion, Banker, is one of the first class registered animals in this district. Mr. Reinholt purchased him from Alex Galbraith & Son, Brandon, Man., last year for $1,300 but would not now take $2000 for him. The sire of Banker was Prince Thomas, the winner of several leading prizes in Scotland including first prize and championship at the Highland and Agricultural society show in 1900. This is the highest honor in Scotland. He had previously been sold at auction for about $4500 and was considered a bargain at the price. The first and second prize winners at the last international show held in Chicago were both sons of Prince Thomas, one of them named Right Forward being champion both there and at Toronto Fair last September in a very large class. Prince Thomas was admittedly one of the best horses and one of the best sires that Scotland has had in recent years.

A week ago Sunday evening Edith and Constance Jarvis went west towards Sylvan Lake to meet their mother, they were accompanied by Gladys Alford. Mrs Jarvis was out to the lake and the children thought to meet her and have a ride home. Mrs. Jarvis came home the other way the children walked to within four miles of the lake when they met a man who refused to give them shelter or to take them to Red Deer. He told them to sleep in an old unused hut but a short distance away. They instead started back for Red Deer another road. They fortunately came to the home of W. Atkins who listened to the story of the little ones kindly hitched up his team and drove them into town reaching here at twelve o'clock. In the meantime Messrs Jarvis and Alford were wildly scouting the country in all directions and about three in the morning reached Mr. Atkin's house shortly after he had returned from town and were wonderfully relieved at hearing of the safety of the children.

Mrs. and Miss Illsey Come to Red Deer.

A. H. Illsey's mother and sister arrived in Red Deer on Friday last from Picton Ont. to make their home here with him.

Before leaving for the west a large number of friends and adherents of St. Andrew's church Picton, met at the manse to say farewell to them and took the opportunity to present them with an address and presentation.

The address was signed on behalf of the congregation by Wm. Shearer, minister, Mrs. Andrew Irving, and John Terrill.

The gifts, which were presented by Mrs. Worrell, consisted of a handsome set of sterling silver spoons for Mrs. Illsey and a beautiful sunburst brooch thickly studded with pearls for Miss Illsey. Mrs. Illsey made a suitable reply, in which she referred to the many good reasons she had for being very much attached to "dear old St. Andrew's" and what a trial it was to herself and family to sever their connection. Miss Illsey also added a few words expressing her appreciation of the kindness shown to herself and family by their many friends in Picton.

Further remarks were made by Messrs. Lepper, MacGillivray and the pastor, after which refreshments were served and the gathering broke up.

By the departure of Mrs. and Miss Illsey, Picton loses the last of one of its oldest and most respected families. Few people in the country were better known and few devoted themselves more thoroughly to the moral welfare of its citizens.

Dear Mr. Editor

Permit me through your valuable paper to bring before the public of Red Deer the importance of providing a reading room and recreation room in our town. Like all other places in the west, ours is a community of young people. Many of our young men have not access to the homes of Red Deer and necessarily are restricted to their rooms or forced to the street. Habits in life far from ideal are being formed, which may result most disastrously. Youth must have some way of working off its superfluous energy, and wholesome recreation is an antidote for evil.

Restraints must be laid on youth lest it wander from the pathway of sobriety and virtue. What we need is a reading room with the daily papers and current magazines and in connection therewith recreation rooms, call it a gymnasium if you will, a place where the young men may spend their evenings. We may not be in a position to start a public library but we may form the neucleus of a free library.

Next Sabbath the pastors in the town will dwell on this matter and a public meeting will be called during the week to inaugurate something of the kind mentioned above. Let the citizens turn out in large numbers and discuss the matter. Thanking you for your courtesy

Yours sincerely
W. G. W. Fortune.

Eckville.

On Sunday next June 9th. Eckville will be visited by the Rev. G. H. Webb, M. A. of Calgary who is expected to preach in the school house at three o'clock in the afternoon. It is hoped that this visit will assist the Church of England missionary Mr. York in the formation of a regular congregation here.

Mr. Boyce Inspector of Schools was here last week and expressed himself as being very pleased by everything he saw in connection with the school work.

A farmer named Maki living north of Eckville was burnt out by a big bush fire last week. He was away from the house at the time and was unfortunate enough to lose not only his house and buildings but practically all the household effects etc.

There was a surveying outfit at the hotel a few nights ago, just returned from the foothills where they have been looking over some timber districts.

Doings at Solheima.

Mr. J. C. Boyce, school inspector visited our school last week.

We understand that local improvement operations will be commenced shortly. We trust the usual satisfactory results will be obtained.

Under the direction of Messrs. W. Watt and O. McCune, a most enjoyable dance was held in McCune's hall on Friday evening last. Despite the rainy weather a fairly large crowd who thoroughly enjoyed themselves was in attendance. Music was furnished by Mr. Chas. McDougall on the organ. A sumptuous supper was provided by the ladies of this district whose culinary achievements rank second to none. Tripping the light fantastic was indulged till the "wee oors o' the mornin," when the crowd dispersed after spending one of the pleasantest evening occasions of the season.

Breaking up the productive soil seems to be the order of the day at present.

Council.

The adjourned meeting of the town council was held on Friday evening last. Mayor in the chair. Members all present except Councillors Gaetz and Pidgeon.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Herald Co. account $15.20 forwarded.

From McCutcheon & Wilson re market weigh scales, stating scales had arrived. It was thought advisable to not pay for scales until set up and found to be in working order. Referred to market and health committee.

Account for advertising in municipal journal $3.20.

H. Reinholt account for work on streets, filling holes, etc. $148.40.

These accounts were on motion ordered to be paid.

The mayor said he had had a conversation with the manager of the Western General Electric Company and he desired to know if the council were going to refer the new schedule to arbitration. If so he would like to know as soon as possible as the company desired to complete arrangements.

Councillor Botterill moved seconded by Councillor McKee that the legislation committee be authorized to secure the consultation of Mr. Walsh of Calgary in conjunction with the town solicitor re agreement of Electric light and telephone assessment of the Western General Electric Co. of this town. Carried.

The Mayor said he thought it necessary to have a shed erected where the water cart could be placed under cover.

The commissioners were authorized to build the shed on motion of McKee and Botterill.

A communication was received from Paradis & Thorold, town engineers, offering to furnish plans and profiles showing the street grades and sewers on all that part of the town bounded as follows, and now subdivided: The C & E railway on the west and the east boundary of Charles on the east, the Red Deer river on the north, and Victoria Avenue on the south, for the sum of $850.

These plans if placed together would be over 140 feet long and will be invaluable to the town.

Councillor Stephenson moved seconded by Councillor Tallman that the matter of having standard plans made for sewers, street grades, etc. be referred to the sewer committee for report. Carried.

By-law 47 was amended by adding thereto:

From and after the 1st day of June there shall be paid to the secretary treasurer for the use of the term from each party to whom a permit is issued under the provisions of this by-law the sum of one dollar for each permit. Report adopted.

By-law 99 was amended by striking out a portion and inserting in place thereof. In all cases where licenses are taken out for a portion only of the year the amount payable to the town of Red Deer for license fees shall be proportionate for part only of the amount required for one year.

A by-law passed its several readings to regulate the laying out of the property in town of Red Deer.

Councillor McKee moved seconded by Councillor Tallman that the secretary be authorized to send a copy of by-law 134 to Deputy Minister of Public Works for the approval of the department and to the registrar of titles for registration when approved. Carried.

The council discussed the milk by-law in committee of the whole for some time and some progress was made but the hour being late the by-law was referred back to the committee to report at a future meeting.

Council adjourned.
